Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

(It is improper to use the word "means" in an abstract.)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. It is unclear how stacked pallets of the disclosed invention would be the same thickness as one single pallet, since the top edging of the upper pallet would inherently extend above the feet of the lower nested pallet increasing the thickness of the unit. It is unclear how this arrangement would even be possible with the pallets disclosed.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-6, 13-16, 18 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. For claims 1 and 13, "said first section" lacks antecedent basis. Also, "lattice-like" is indefinite, the structure either has a lattice configuration or doesn't.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4, 6-10, and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fengels (4,095,769). Fengels teaches a pallet (Fig. 1) comprising: a plurality of sections (1,1') having upper, lower and side surfaces; rectangular channels (5) formed through one of the side surfaces of each section and into the section; and a plurality of rectangular elongated connectors (7) dimensioned to fit closely in (and secured to via screw fasteners (8)) the channels of mating sections. As for method claims 7-10 and 12, since Fengels teaches the structural limitations of the claims, the method steps would inherently be met.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 13 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action. (The prior art fails to teach a pallet comprising: a plurality of single molded polymeric sections having upper, lower and side surfaces, channels formed through at least one of the side surfaces of each section and extending into the section; a plurality of integral supporting legs extending from the lower surfaces; the upper surfaces being formed by lattice-like structure of integrally molded intersecting members having an inverted U-shaped cross-section, the channels being formed in the intersection members; and a plurality of elongated connectors dimensioned to fit in the channels, each of the connectors extending between a channel of a first section and a channel of a second section.)

Claims 5, 11, 14-16, 18 and 19 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
